Sheme & Luke

After a romantic dinner reliving the couples' first date at The Hotel Windsor, Luke pulled a ring box from his pocket. The proposal caught Sheme by surprise, so she laughed and cried before answering with a resounding yes! Luke and Sheme held their wedding at Rose and Crown in Guildford. The relaxed ceremony was held in the beer garden, where guests enjoyed pubs tunes and beer on tap. The beautiful tree canopy made for a stunning background, which suited the rustic wedding theme. The reception followed in the White Barn – a simple and elegant space tucked away behind the pub. The White Barn was perfect for an intimate celebration with family and friends, who felt like they had the whole place to themselves. Beautiful native greenery featured throughout the venue, such as on the table settings and draped across the exposed beams of the barn. In a show of true talent, Sheme designed and made her own wedding gown from tulle, French lace and beaded organza. In a departure from his typical hi-vis work wear, Luke opted for a dapper charcoal and navy suit, which he paired with a cute gumnut boutonniere. Luke and Sheme honeymooned at home, where they spent the week simply enjoying each other's company. The couple are often separated due to work and only get to see each other every few days, so the newlyweds wouldn't have had it any other way.

"Just have fun! All the little details aren't what people take away from the experience – they remember the love and atmosphere of the day."
